Head Jeremy Edwards watches welly-boot-clad parents with dogs march across Clapham Common in the morning, or the buses file in from Parsons Green and Belgravia. They are busy in the classroom here, with a glittering leavers' list: St Paul's, Westminster, King's Wimbledon, Eton, Harrow. Budding politicians in Year 7 took Wandsworth Council to task over a blue plaque and won. There's a new weather station for keen geographers and Mandarin has been introduced. But most importantly, Mr Edwards is about 'broadening boys' horizons'. There are lots of trips about the capital and everyone is football mad: the 1st XI reached the final of the IAPS six-a-side tournament and Year 4 were unbeaten in the autumn term. The new multimillion-pound theatre is open; last year's big play was What a Knight – King Arthur with music, dancing and terrible puns.
